Why Wrestling?

By Rick Bamford

Numerous educational benefits are derived from a well-developed wrestling program not only for the competitors but also for the other students in the school, the school climate, staff, parents, and the entire community.

Areas of benefit for the competitor include:

- Physical fitness in virtually all aspects of this component.
- Physical skill development which can impact many other sports in a positive way.
- Knowledge and understanding of the principles of movement and the way the body works.
- Attitudes and Appreciation for the value of hard work and potential outcomes personally as well as positive attitudes towards oneself and appreciation for others.
- Social skills related to sportsmanship and respect for other's rights and feelings.

Students involved in this type of program tend to have a channel for their aggressive natural tendencies and yet learn acceptable ways for expressing this aggression.

Wrestling as an activity does not discriminate against any student. Size does not factor as an advantage is that the very smallest student in the school has just as much chance of winning his/her weight class championship as the biggest student.

Parent's Guide to Wrestling

Whether you are the parent of a new wrestler or a seasoned veteran, wrestling can be confusing. Here's a crash course on terminology to help prepare you for tournaments. Veteran parents and coaches are also great resources. Don't be afraid to ask! We were all new parents once!

Everyone Can Do it!

With wrestling, everyone has the opportunity to participate! There are several schools and clubs kids can participate in. The best part is, there are no real restrictions in participating. Since there are no expensive equipment requirements it is economically feasible for almost anyone. All you need are some gym clothes and a place to practice. You do not have to be a certain body size. Unlike sports emphasizing height and weight requirements, wrestling can be done by anyone without changing how they are built. Both boys and girls are encouraged to participate and practice in the same room. (Naturally, males compete with males and females compete with females.) Alberta has had national champions weighing as little as 42kg to as heavy as 130kg (that's 92lbs to 286lbs!) Wrestling is unique in the sense that it helps you to work better with your own body, not by trying to make the same mold work on everyone. Wrestling is also an excellent cross-training sport for other sports like rugby, football, hockey, and any other sport that emphasizes balance or physical contact. In addition to this, wrestling is an excellent confidence-building sport.

Pairings

Pairing matches wrestlers for bouts by using a number drawn by wrestlers during registration. An uneven number of opponents may result in a bye instead of an actual match. As the tournament proceeds, match results are returned to pairings so that more matches can be arranged. The placeholders will be determined based on the wrestler's progression through the tournament, and points awarded due to wins, types of wins, and losses.

Bracket Sheet

Each weight class will have a bracket prepared from weigh-ins and registration. The final list of participants for each weight class will be posted in a designated area. Your wrestler's name will be paired with their opponent for the current (or yet-to-be-wrestled) round. Some weight classes may have several brackets. For example, you could see Bantam 50A, 50B, and 50C bracket sheets. If you do not see your wrestler's name on the bracket, please see your coach immediately so that they can check with pairings! Sometimes large brackets are posted last

Weight Class & Age Groups

Your wrestler will be categorized by age and weight. Each age group will have different weight classes, depending upon the tournament size and host. Age groups are based on your wrestler's birthday for AAWA tournaments.

When can we go home?

Before you leave the tournament, always check with a GPWC coach to make sure that your wrestler is finished. Usually, if your wrestler has had two losses, an X will appear on their bracket after their second loss and they are done wrestling. However, that depends on how deep they are in the tournament.

Things to Remember

Have your wrestler rest between matches and play mellow activities like a PSP, DS, or coloring. If they run around, they will be exhausted for their next match.

Keep them hydrated and eat healthy snacks like fruit and jerky. Feeding them sugar will result in a crash and no energy.

If you stay in a hotel with a pool, you may want to limit pool time to the night before a tournament. Swimming may drain your wrestler's energy.

Relax and have fun!

Enjoy the time with your wrestler, their teammates, and other families, and support them on and off the mat. Stay positive and encourage them to do their best. This may be their first time ever or their 1,000th match. Let them know you support them and cheer them on! Promote good sportsmanship and lead by example.
